An American Supper in Hungary.

One day we prepared an American feast for our Hungarian friends, who were curious to see what some of our dishes were like. "You must give us Boston beans and brown bread," said one who had heard of these Yankee delicacies; "and a pie," chimed in another.
Our facilities were not of the best, but we set a supper that had the virtue of variety if no other. In vain we searched the china-shops for individual butter-plates and small sauce-dishes; they were unknown, and for the first we substituted color-saucers, which are very similar in shape and size, but they proved a puzzle to our guests. They were quite shocked, too, to see the food set upon the table.

I grieve to state that they were not enthusiastic over this National meal, for it may seem to cast a reflection upon its cooks. Most gingerly they tasted our beautifully browned beans, remarking casually that it was a pity to so spoil beans, when they made so excellent a salad. They actually "turned up their noses" at our delicious brown bread, which they were sure was heavy; the raw dressed tomatoes they sent away, lest they poison the air; the chicken-salad they declined to say might be good if the chicken had been left out. The American pie they thought might be eatable, had it been baked in small pans, and without a top crust; and our crisp, delicate, warm rolls they refused to eat for twenty-four hours, lest they perish at once. Our roast beef they declined because it had not been boiled; but the Saratoga potatoes! Budapest may yet erect to us a monument, because we introduced there "Saratoga chips," for they tickled the Hungarian palate, and produced a sensation that satisfied us.

But, as a whole, our American feast starved them. This they frankly made known, and we adjourned to a neighboring Restoration to satisfy their hunger.
This is what we had there: An ox-tail soup, full of dumplings; a dish of green peas and rice boiled together, eaten with grated cheese; small "turnover" pies, filled with sour cabbage, pork and curry;
a chicken cooked with sour cream and paprika, which is the reddest of red pepper; a salad dressed with sunflower oil; some semme's (rolls) stuffed with poppy-seeds stewed with milk and honey, and, to end with, a cheese, mixed on the table, made of cream cheese, butter, cavaire, garlic and capers. But one could eat almost anything helped by such Tokay wine as one only gets in Hungary.—From "European Breezes," by Margery Deane.

"Ah, my friend," said a clergyman to a parishioner who was the husband of a termagant and who had made application for a divorce, "we should be yielding and forgiving. There are no divorces in heaven." "That's the reason," said the sufferer, "why I am so anxious to get a divorce here."

it the whole service." Mrs. B.—"Nor

THE average height of the Japanese is ALMOST all volcanoes are found in proximity to large bodies of water. The greater number are situated on islands, and the rest, with very few exceptions, near the borders of the sea or on lacus-

ion that pressure of steam is the force which expels the lava torrents.

Kendall's Spavin Cure.

The Most Successful Remedy ever discovered, as it is certain it effects and does not blister. READ PROOF BELOW.

From Rev. P. N. GRANGER.

Presiding Elder of the St. Albans District. ST. ALBANS, VT., Jan., 20, 1880. DR. B. J. KENDALL & Co., Gents:—In reply to your letter I will say that my experience with 'Kendall's Spavin Cure' has been very satisfactory indeed. Three or four years ago I procured a bottle of your agent, and with it, cured a horse of lameness caused by a spavin. Last season my horse became very lame and I turned him out for a few weeks when he became better, but when I put him on the road he grew worse, when I discovered that a ring-bone was forming, I procured a bottle of Kendall's Spavin Cure and with less than a bottle cured him so that he is not lame, neither can the bunch be found. Respectfully yours, P. N. GRANGER.

Perseverance Will Tell.

STROUGHTON, MASS., March 16, 1880. B. J. KENDALL & Co., Gents:—In justice to you and myself, I think I ought to let you know that I have removed two bone spavins with 'Kendall's Spavin Cure,' one very large one, don't know how long the spavin had been there. I have owned the horse eight months. It took me four months to take the large one off and two for the small one. I have used ten bottles. The horse is entirely well, not at all stiff, and no bunch to be seen or felt. This is a wonderful medicine. It is a new thing here, but if it does for all what it has done for me it will be very great. Respectfully yours, CHAS. E. PARKER.

KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE is sure in its effects, mild in its action as it does not blister, yet it is penetrating and powerful to reach a every deep seated pain or to remove any bony growth or other enlargement, such as spavins, splints, curbs, callous, sprains, swellings, any lameness and all enlargements of the joints or limbs, or rheumatism in man and for any purpose for which a liniment is used for man or beast. It is now known to be the best liniment for man ever used, acting mild and yet certain in its effects.

Send address for illustrated Circular which we think gives positive proof of its virtues. No remedy has ever met with such unqualified success to our knowledge, for beast as well as man.

Price $1. per bottle, or six bottles for $5. ALL DRUGGISTS have it or can get it for you or it will be sent to any address on receipt of price by the proprietors, DR. B. J. KENDALL & CO. Enosburgh Falls, Vermont. J27d.

CARD.

THE articles of co-partnership between Jos. H. Dodson, Geo. W. Huggins and myself, recite that "the parties aforesaid do hereby become partners in business;" that "the business of said partnership shall be that of buying, selling and delivering coal," and that "the profits made or losses sustained by the said partners in the prosecution of said business shall be divided equally between them." It will be seen, therefore, that I owned one-third of all the firm property of every kind and character and was liable for one-third of its losses and any statement of Jos. H. Dodson or Geo. W. Huggins to the contrary is false. The co-partnership articles also recites that for certain "services to be rendered by said Dodson and Russell they together shall receive the sum of One Thousand Dollars to be divided between them in such proportions as they may agree upon." If, then, I "was on a salary" so, also, was Jos. H. Dodson. I need not add that I regret the necessity for this card, but since there may be some who are misled by the "notice" published by Jos. H. Dodson and Geo. W. Huggins in the last issue of the BULLETIN this, my apology.

A FIRE, supposed to have been kindled by an incendiary, was discovered at Weedon's livery stable, corner of Market and Fourth streets, about seven o'clock on Sunday morning. It was put out before any damage was done.

THE steamer City of Portsmouth has been sold to the Newport Ferry Company. Her machinery will be placed in a new ferry-boat. The Portsmouth will however remain in the Chilo trade until another boat is procured in her place, which, Capt. Holloway says, will be about ten days.

THE jail committee has been notified by Judge Wall to meet at his office to-morrow morning, to determine whether to lower the sewer at the jail lot or to build it on another part of the same lot. Either can be done, and it will not therefore be necessary to buy property adjoining as erroneously stated.

TWENTY-THREE more bodies were recovered Saturday from the wreck of the ill-fated Scioto. The excitement is unabated and thousands of persons are on the the ground as the sad search for the lost goes on. No definite conclusion has yet been reached as to the number of lives destroyed by the disaster.

Out Among Our Indiana Cousins.

BROOKSVILLE, INDIANA, July 5, 1882.

Ed. Bulletin: By all the laws that bind people together there are more and stronger ties cementing the interests of Kentucky and Indiana, than any other two states.

It has been a profound mystery to me why the emigration from Kentucky to Indiana, seldom returned till now. A similarity of soil, topography of the country habits of the people are so much alike if any preference be given Indiana extends freer hospitalities with a more earnest hand, accounts for her prosperity and expanded growth.

This town of Brooksville in Franklin county was settled in 1819, and has continued to keep in advance. Located at the junction of the East and West Forks of White Water River it presents a city under and upon a hill with wide valleys and accessible hills under the highest cultivation. It is here the 4th of July was celebrated in the olden time style. Societies, Fire Companies, Sunday schools, Labor Associations &c., all joined in procession headed with bands of music and marched to dinner. Dancing, sporting and speaking and a most glorious old 4th it was.

The bright, clean and cosy homes of Brooksville and vicinity are the prominent features that makes this town a center of convivial souls. We were happy at the cheerful home of A. B. Line and his charming family who after the ceremonies of the 4th gave a reception to which all the ministers and good families of this neighborhood attended.

Every other individual you meet here comes from Kentucky or traces his or their lineage to a southern source.

The Court House here is a magnificent structure, the frescoing of the walls and ceiling by a native of the valley, excels any other frescoing for beauty and delicacy of touch. Its too bad, such genius and talent should remain dormant and unappreciated.

Four years ago while court was in session the roof of this court building came crashing down on the heads of the court and lawyers, who escaped without loss of life, and in the reconstruction, this new improvement was substituted.

We, that, is my better half, are much indebted to the judges, lawyers and city official for conspicuous attentions. We were fascinated with the plain and unassuming kindness of the ladies, especially with the brilliant conversational power of Messrs. Lawyer Haller, and others. The courtesies of each and all of other managers of this celebration will ever be remembered by

COUSIN BILL.

THE sermon by the Rev. M. W. Taylor, colored, at the Third street M. E. Church, yesterday morning, is said to have been a very interesting and able one. The brethren who failed to hear it missed a treat.

The Duke's Death.

"Kneel here by my side, Lurline," and in obedience to the summons, a beautiful girl flung herself in an abandon of grief near the bed on which lay the eighth Duke of Twenty-second street, Rupert Rollingsstone. Rupert was dying—dying away out on the West Side. A cold had developed into a quick consumption. The dreaded disease had made known its presence while Rupert was at the house of a friend on Laffin street. "You can not live more than a week," the doctor had said. "But my people," cried the sick man, in an agony of fear; "they are on Twenty-second street, and too poor to hire a carriage. How shall I see them?" and he wrung his hands in an agony of despair.

"It can not be done, my lass," said the street-railway superintendent, looking down kindly into Lurline's face. "I would gladly do aught that might ease the last moments of a dying man, but I can not accomplish impossibilities. A car from Twenty-second street to the corner of Laffin and Van Buren in five days? By my halidom, you jst bravely," and, picking up a pair of shears, he again resumed his occupation of cutting coupons from government bonds. When Lurline had knelt by the dying man, he turned to her and spoke: "Lurline, my darling," he said, "I am dying down. I shall soon be in the sweet pretty quick. But ere I start, I want you to make me one promise—a sacred one, that you will keep forever." "Name it," said the girl, in a sob-choked voice. "Whenever you are in a hurry, avoid the street car." "I promise," was the reply. Rupert's face lit up with a sweet, peaceful smile. "Good-bye, my angel." "Bung soir," was the faint response, as the girl's head fell on his breast amid a storm of sobs. "I see heaven," murmured the dying man. "I know it is heaven, because there are lots of street cars, and they run every three minutes." Rupert was dead.—Chicago Tribune.

Athletic Training.

Manly exercise, or what is sometimes called "muscular education" is practiced at all of our colleges, but the art of physical development in modern times is still in its infancy as compared with the customs of the Greeks. Oscar Browning says: "By the time the fourteenth year was completed the Greek boy would have begun to devote himself seriously to the practice of athletics. The ardor shown in this pursuit by the Greeks and Romans is often used as an argument for our exaggerated devotion to them at the present day. There is no doubt that by the double attention to the welfare of mind and body, the Greeks became the most beautiful as well as the most gifted of mankind. But it is a question whether in our modern race after cups and colors we are following the Greeks at all, and not rather the factions of the Roman circus, and the corruption of the lower empire. Much as the Greeks prized athletic distinction, they held professional athletes in very little honor. They would have regarded with contempt a gentleman who thought it a desirable object in life to be a prize-fighter, a game-keeper, or a coachman. The antagonism between work and games was a practical difficulty to them, as it is to us. It was indeed in the palaestra that Socrates found his readiest hearers, and dispensed his abstruse lore. Can we imagine a dialogue such as the 'Theaetetus' being held in an English cricket-ground, with the players waiting for their innings? But Euripides denounces the race of athletes in strong language, and there are other signs that in his time the danger of their excessive cultivation was being recognized. The enthusiasm shown by Homer and Pindar for bodily strength had become weaker in the days of Pericles. The Greeks did not think, as we are apt to, that athletics are the best guarantee for manliness of character and the best safeguard against effeminacy. They knew that the mind and body cannot be profitably exercised at the same time, and that the mind and not the body is the seat of higher aspirations. The Spartans whose names have become proverbial for hardness, were regarded by the Athenians as brutalized by their training."

BATCHELDER'S
Ventilated Egg Case.
Patented February 15, 1881.
Indispensible to Merchants Shippers
And Producers.

The outside frame of this carrier contains five trays, held in place by fasteners at end of case, as seen in cut. These Trays are constructed in reversible halves. The above cut shows one whole tray filled ready to be placed in case, each egg resting in its cardboard socket in such a manner as to be readily counted, candled, or transferred from tray to tray, or case to case without rehandling.
For cold storage this case will store 60 dozen with racks made to receive the half trays, hence this is the cheapest storage case manufactured, saving largely in space.
The manner of holding the eggs on end prevents oscillation, adding, or breakage, and adds greatly to their freshness when carried long in storage. Size of 30 dozen No. 1 cases 25x12x14, weighs 20 pounds.
